A.3 Previous SEGRA Themes and Action Agendas

SEGRA Conferences are themed to help focus on current issues surrounding rural and regional areas in Australia.

Previous themes:

SEGRA 2012, held at Terrigal, Central Coast NSW, focused on ensuring regions leverage maximum benefits from regional growth, town centre renewal and large scale developments. Significant economic activities occur in regions - primary production, tourism, mining, tertiary education, military facilities, civic services to regional populations

SEGRA 2011 was themed around 'Promoting Regional Australia: regions and their cities'. Regional Australia has recently enjoyed an increased political profile, however, terms such as regions, regionalism and regionalisation remain largely undefined and fluid. The established policy frameworks need to be elucidated and emerging positions proactively shaped.

SEGRA 2010 was all about Regions Delivering a Big Australia. At the forefront of discussion will be issues regarding population, migration, growth management, sustainability and interregional capital transfers.

The SEGRA 2009 Conference looked at exploring new frontiers for regional Australia. Key program themes include riding the cycles and managing change, the economic outlook for regional Australia and how to position small to medium enterprise businesses for the next boom.

The theme for SEGRA 2008 was Creative Solutions - expect them to be different. Key program themes included scenario planning, invigorating local communities and climate change with challenges to use creativity and innovation strategically and deliberatively. It featured close to 50 case studies around these ideas.

SEGRA 2007 looked at the critical elements in achieving productive change and how to use these to establish and maintain sustainable economic growth for regional Australia. The theme was 'Changing Regions: the road to success'. SEGRA 2007 helped set the national agenda for regional Australia for the next 10 years.

SEGRA 2006 is about how regions need to be increasingly adaptable, have open minds to new opportunities, and be able to respond and seize these opportunities with appropriate and timely actions that can be effectively implemented. Adaptability and recognising opportunities are the essential lessons for successful regional economic development.

SEGRA 2005, themed Sustainable Regional Development: getting down to business, was about business, industry, government and community working in partnership to grow regions, no matter how large or small, how remote or close to amenities, how fast growing or stable. 'Getting down to business' means looking at the hard edge of business and practical actions to tackle key problems.

Big Ideas for Regional Australia: breaking new territory formed the theme for SEGRA 2004, and focused on big ideas to solve current government problems, building business sustainability, upcoming trends: social, economic and environmental as well as enhancing regional attractiveness.

Building Resilient Regions: sustainable economic growth for regional Australia was the theme for SEGRA 2003. It focused on defining regional resilience, managing economic, social and environmental sustainability, regional tourism, urbanisation and regions as well as skills for regional work.

Smart Paths to Regional Growth: servicing regions for economic growth from SEGRA 2002, which focused on assisting regional, rural and remote Australia to be more creative and innovative, beyond the boundaries of existing responses to reshape the way in which soft and hard infrastructure is developed and can be developed in ways that bring sustainable growth to regions.

SEGRA 2001 had the theme 'Regions Driving Decision Making: raising regional profiles, which focused on Marketing Regions, Understanding Drivers of Regional Change, Community Engagement for Better Decisions, Action and Impact, Innovative Regional Governance and Processed, Collaborative Projects across Regional, Organisation and International Boundaries, Economic Development Strategies, Changing the Issues, Implementing Sustainable Development Practices and Promoting Regional Tourism.
